SEMINARHAUS

SCOTT DOUGLAS

Workshop Description:

The workshop is aimed at intermediate to advanced players, who want to learn some of Sandy's techniques, such as:

- rapid fire triplets
- use of grace notes and other ornamentation
- Bellows control and emphasis
- Fingering techniques on the keyboard
- Syncopated rhythms on the bass

Sandy will also teach tunes in the most common styles used in Scottish traditional music e.g. jigs, reels, marches (2/4, 4/4 and 6/8), waltzes, hornpipes and polkas.

Biography:

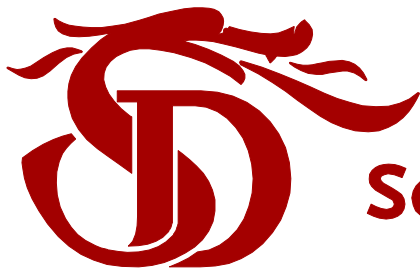

Sandy Brechin is one of Scotland's best-known accordionists, famous for his lightning-fast playing and hilarious on-stage humour. He has developed his own unique approach to the art of accordion playing and his innovative style is instantly recognisable: a combination of slick, incredibly fast finger-work on the melody and a revolutionary method of syncopation on the bass. Sandy was the first in Scotland to play professionally the small 48 bass size of accordion, which is now pretty much his trademark. Despite its small size and range, Sandy gets a huge sound out of it.

Sandy grew up in the village of Kirkliston, West Lothian, just outside Edinburgh, and was taught accordion from the age of eight, firstly by the late Chrissie Leatham for many years and then later the free bass five row chromatic accordion by her son Owen Murray, now Professor of Accordion at the Royal Academy of Music in London.

In 1996, Sandy founded his own record label Brechin All Records, which has now grown into one of Scotland's most successful independent folk music labels.

A talented composer, Sandy has published a book of his own compositions, Out of His Mind, in conjunction with Taigh na Teud music publishers. Many of his tunes have been recorded by other bands such as Blazin' Fiddles, Give Way and Iron Horse, and some of his tunes have been used recently in the new Royal Conservatoire of Scotland's Scottish Music Graded Exam books. In the Young Traditional Musician of the Year 2014 competition on BBC TV, Tírèe accordionist Ian Smith performed one of Sandy's tunes 'Sonically Justified' in the final.

Sandy is a highly experienced piano accordion tutor with a long history of teaching, both privately and for a variety of organisations in the UK and around the world. He has developed his own fingering method for the keyboard and a unique syncopated style of bass accompaniment, which many students have learnt to their benefit. He is the full-time accordion tutor at the National Centre for Excellence in Traditional Music in Plockton, a government-funded post he has held for many years. He has produced two accordion DVD's (again in conjunction with Taigh na Teud) – 'Play Scottish Accordion' Beginners and Intermediate versions – which have been ordered by accordionists all over the world and is currently writing an accompanying teaching book. Sandy is also a regular tutor for the Orkney Traditional Music Project in Kirkwall and has taught at workshops in America, Australia, New Zealand and in Europe. He teaches at home at several Feisean every year, such as Fèis Rois Inbhich (Ullapool), Fèis an Earraich (Isle of Skye), Fèis Dhùn Èideann (Edinburgh), Fèis Inbhir Narainn (Nairn), Fèis Lochabair (Fort William), Fèis sa Mheadhan (Stirling) and Fèis am Ploc (Plockton).

Sandy taught the accordion workshop at Celtic Connections Concert series in Glasgow for the first 15 years of the festival and has also taught Short Summer Courses at Sabhal Mòr Ostaig, the Gaelic College on the Isle of Skye at the Traditional Music BA Course on the Isle of Benbecula and is a guest lecturer at the Royal Conservatoire of Scotland in Glasgow, Newcastle University, Edinburgh University and Tinto Summer School in the borders.

As well as managing the record company, Sandy still has an incredibly busy touring schedule all over the world.
